

Tokaj – a wine region with history

The winemaking techniques of Tokaj and the surrounding villages were established as early as 1650, earning the region international fame even then. Regularly enjoyed by Russian Czars, Peter the Great even bought a vineyard in the hills above Tokaj. King Louis XIV of France is said to have once described Tokaj's wines as “the wine of kings and the king of wines“. Today, the appellation's trademark sweet wines enjoy similar lofty status among wine enthusiasts the world over.
