

Hungary's most famous buildings

Gödöllő Castle (Sissi Castle)

Count Antal Grassalkovich commissioned the construction of this lavish complex more than 250 years ago. Now the largest remaining baroque palace after Versailles, Grassalkovich's magnificent building became the favourite residence of the popular Empress Elizabeth – better known as Sisi or Sissi by her many fans – in the second half of the 19th century. Emperor Franz Joseph and Empress Elizabeth were crowned King and Queen of Hungary on June 1867 in Budapest's Matthias Church.
