

Szentendre

The town of Szentendre was shaped by its rich artistic legacy. In the 1920s, it was settled by scores of painters, a tradition that was passed down through the generations and spawned the dozen or so museums and galleries we see today in Szentendre. What is more, thanks to the influence of the Serbs who settled here after fleeing the Turks in the 14th and 17th centuries, a Mediterranean flair can be felt throughout Szentendre. The blend of orthodox church motifs and Christian art only makes this pleasant small town even more charming.
